

Unstoppable Gospel
A Mission Powered by God
Acts 1:4-8

There is a large section of the Christian sub-culture that believes that the finished work of Christ on the cross and the ongoing power and presence of the Holy Spirit are solely for personal blessing and private matters of faith. While we are certainly blessed by God’s redemptive plan for us, ultimately the purpose of that plan is for the benefit and blessing of others.

“The Spirit of Christ is the spirit of missions, and the nearer we get to him, the more intensely missionary we must become.” –Henry Martyn (1781-1812)

Every American generation from early in the 20th century and forward has been less evangelized than the previous generation. Even when one generation experiences revival, the work of the Spirit must continue because every generation must embrace the gospel for themselves. God calls us to be the witnesses of the power of Christ and the bearers of His message to this generation—starting right here among the people closest to us.
